

UPI Telephoto

Pat's Pal

During the two-hour military parade celebrating the inauguration yesterday of Venezuelan President Carlos Andres Perez, Pat Nixon put her arm around a young girl who was in the reviewing stand. Mrs. Nixon, who was President Nixon's personal representative to the inauguration, sat in the hot sun for two hours watching squads of paratroopers, tanks and hundreds of soldiers in uniform parade. She described the military spectacle as "very interesting."