

The world on a string

President Nixon displayed his talents as a fledgling yo-yo-er last night to an audience of 4400 country-western music fans at the opening of the new Grand Ole Opry hall in Nashville. The yo-yo was a gift from veteran country-western star Roy Acuff, right, who uses one in his act. The President was joined at the opening by his wife, Pat, who flew in from Brazil at the end of her South American tour. It was Mrs. Nixon's 62nd birthday and the audience joined in a rendition of "Happy Birthday" with piano accompaniment by . . . guess who? See Page 13A.
