

Mrs. Nixon Has The Flu

Washington

Pat Nixon was stricken with influenza yesterday upon her return to the capital from a 9000-mile trip to Latin America.

White House officials said she was unable to attend church services or her traditional "second birthday" celebration on St. Patrick's Day.

President Nixon informed press secretary Ronald L. Ziegler that Mrs. Nixon "has a fever" and would remain in bed.

United Press