I.R.S. Official Who Praised Nixons Promoted to Head Philadelphia Office

Times MAR 2 6 1974 By eileen shanahan

The Internal Revenue official who praised President Nixon for the careful preparation of his 1970 and 1971 tax returns and who accepted them, without change, after a very brief audit has been promoted to head the agency's Philadelphia regional office.

The official is William D. Waters, who was director of the agency's district office in Baltimore last June when he wrote the letter of praise to the President and Mrs. Nixon, and Mrs. Nixon, ed as filed" which is standard who accepted them, without change, after a very brief audit has been promoted to head the agency's Philadelphia regional office.

The official is William D. Waters, who was director of the agency's district office in Baltimore last June when he wrote the letter of praise to the Nixons informed them that their returns had been "accepted them of the president and Mrs. Nixon, ed as filed" which is standard to cases where Internal Revenue nue suspects its agents are being bribed, he said. "Mr. Alexander vigorously maintained that the career employes of Internal Revenue were nonpartisan. "The I.R.S. bureaucracy is not biased in either direction," he said. "They're biased to ward doing their job well." Mr. Dean testified before the Senate Watergate hearings that he had a conversation with President Nixon on Sept. 15, regional office.

The official is William D. Waters, who was director of the agency's district office in Baltimore last June when he wrote the letter of praise to the President and Mrs. Nixon, following an audit by two agents in the Baltimore office that head heavy just eaven days.

In addition task for documentation to support the large deductions that Mr. Nixon had taken.

The letter, dated June 1, 1973, that Mr. Waters wrote to the Nixons informed them that their returns had been "accepted as filed," which is standard Internal Revenue language.

earlier.
Internal Revenue language.

In addition, the letter contained a special second paragraph that I.R.S. district offices announced that it was conducting a re-examination? of the returns. The announcement came after questions had been "The paragraph raised publicity." came after questions had been raised publicity about the validity of some items the returns contained, and after Presiwas "irrelevant to the consideration of his promotion," Mr. Alexander said.

Under questioning by reporters and editors of The New York Times at a luncheon interview, Mr. Alexander said that he "may have considered for a did not specify which ones he fleeting moment" that the promotion could look bad if Mr. Nixon were subsequently found to have underpaid his taxes for the sequence of the Nixon Administration and concluded that I.R.S. had residently which ones he would like to cut off.

The would like to reduce the number of individuals and agencits in Congress and in the executive branch of the Government who have access to individual tax returns, though he would like to cut off.

The would like to reduce the number of individuals and agencits in Congress and in the executive branch of the Government who have access to individual tax returns, though he would like to cut off.

The would like to reduce the number of individuals and agencits in Congress and in the executive branch of the Government who have access to individual tax returns, though he would like to cut off.

The would like to reduce the number of individuals and agencits in Congress and in the executive branch of the Operation of the Nixon Administration of the Nixon Administrati thousands of dollars. That find out some rules that are stricter Special to The New York Times

WASHINGTON, Merch 25—
The Internal Revenue official who praised President Nixon for the careful properties.

But he continued wife to the surgest of the Attorney General on this matter, he said. Wiretapping is mainly limited to cases where Internal Revenue Taxation.

But he continued wife to the surgest its area stricter ing has been described as problem. The natural representation of the Attorney General Revenue Taxation.

But he continued wife to the surgest its area stricter ing has been described as problem.

President Nixon on Sept. 15, 1972 that included the subject of "the use of the Internal Revenue Service to attack our enemies."

Mr. Dean said he had told the President that this would be hard to do because "the Internal Revenue Service was a rather Democratically orient-ed bureaucracy." the discretion.

The paragraph says, in part, been the care shown in the preparate resistance of subjects during the look interview. Among them were the following:

be hard to do better to do nate the following:

be hard to do better to do nate the following part, internal Revenue Service was a rather Democratically oriented bureaucracy."

Wanted 'Responsive' People According to Mr. Dean, Mr. Nixon replied that Democratic Administrations had used Internal Revenue for political purtable "after"

According to Mr. Dean, Mr. Nixon replied that Democratic Administrations had used Internal Revenue, defended the promotion of Mr. Waters, asserting that he was well qualified and would be a "damned good" regionl administrator. There are seven I.R.S. regions in the nation.

"A Fleeting Moment"

Mr. Waters's approval of the much-criticized audit of Mr. Nixon's 1970 and 1971 returns was "irrelevant to the consideration of his promotion," Mr. Alexander said.

Under questioning by report-criticized and editors.

"A Fleeting Moment"

Mr. Waters's approval of the much-criticized audit of Mr. Nixon's 1970 and 1971 returns was "irrelevant to the consideration of his promotion," Mr. Alexander said.

Under questioning by report-criticized and editors.

"A Fleeting Moment"

Mr. Waters's approval of the much-criticized audit of Mr. Nixon's 1970 and 1971 returns was "irrelevant to the consideration of his promotion," Mr. Alexander said.

Under questioning by report-criticized and editors.

"A Fleeting Moment"

Mr. Waters's approval of the much-criticized audit of Mr. Nixon's 1970 and 1971 returns of the following:

"A Fleeting Moment"

Mr. Waters's approval of the much-criticized audit of Mr. Nixon's 1970 and 1971 returns of the President and other high microscopic and provided that Democratic Administrations had used Internal Revenue poses and added that "after the election, we should get people in these agencies who would be responsive to the White House requirements."

He sees no need to create the loady, Mr. Alexander said he had "no reason to believe" that the standards of believe that the standards of belie