MAHEU JURY TOLD OF HUGHES DOUBTS

Trial Hears That Recluse Feared Bank Conspiracy

Special to The New York Times

LOS ANGELES, May 14—A Federal trial jury was told to-day thatt Howard R. Hughes hired private detectives to fol-ow bankers who had turned bw bankers who had turned down his request for financing of Trans World Airlines jet danes purchases in the nineteen-sixties.

The jury was also told that thinkers had obtained conies.

Vir. Hughes had obtained copies of the financier's long-distance telephone billings to trace their contacts with other bankers.

Robert A. Maheu, who testified that he had attempted to carry out the surveillance assignments for Mr. Hughes, said the financier was suspicious that a conspiracy existed among bankers in New York to use the refinancing problem. as a means of wresting control of T.W.A. from Mr. Hughes.
Mr. Maheu, once an agent of the Federal Bureau of Investigation was a witness.

tigation, was a witness in sup-port of his $17.3-million defa-mation suit against the bilination suit again lionaire recluse.

Mr. Maheu worked for the interests from about Hughes interests from about 1955 until he was dismissed in 1955 until he was dismissed in 1970 at a time when the Hughes companies paid $520,000 a year to Robert A. Maheu Associates, Mr. Maheu's company. Mr. Hughes said Mr Maheu "stole me blind" and Mr. Maheu sued in Federal court here.

Facts Not Detailed

The facts that have not been presented in detail to the jury indicate that as the price of ceting his loans, Mr. Hughes had to put his T.W.A. stock—some 75 per cent of the company's total—into a trust voted without regard to Mr. Hughes' without regard to Mr. Hughes's

As a result of this, new man-agement filed damage actions gainst him and won judgments of $145-million against his holdings, arguing that the air-ine had been damaged by hs bad, management. Mr. Hughes inally prevailed in the Supreme ourt last year, but he sold his W.A. stock in 1965 for $546,-

Mr. Maheu, who testified pre-Mr. Maheu, who testified previously that he was assigned to watch over Mr. Hughes's Tucson, Ariz., holdings before 1966, said today that from 1964 until 1968 he had slight involvement with the TWA litigation.

By 1968, when the multinillion-dollar award of damages to T.W.A. was confirmed in Federal court, Mr. Maheu testi-ied, he had become manager of the Hughes interests in Nevada, which included hotels, Nevada, which included hotels, casinos, an airport and thousands of acres of land.

Mr. Maheu said he had been called by Mr. Hughes and told to take full responsibility for organizing the legal defense.

Mr. Maheu said he insisted that Mr. Hughes put his instructions in writing. A four-page handwritten note identified by Mr. Maheu as Mr. Hughes's note, was admitted into evidence over the objections of the Hughes attorneys. attorneys.

"You have the ball on the T.W.A. situation," the note said. Mr. Maheu was given the right to pick attorneys who would argue for Mr. Hughes. "I reargue for Mr. Hughes. "I repeat, Bob, you have complete authority," Mr. Hughes wrote.

Corporate Fighting

However, in 1970, when Mr. However, in 1970, when Mr. Maheu sought to replace Chester C. Davis, who had been the chief lawyer in much of the T.W.A. litigation, a corporate light erupted that ended with Mr. Maheu's dismissal and Mr. Davis remaining as chief counsel of the Hughes holding company, the Summa Corporation sel of the Hughes holding com-pany, the Summa Corporation. Mr. Maheu also testified about some of the unusual ac-tivities he had been asked to undertake while in the employ of Mr. Hughes. He said that when he managed the wealthy industrialist's holdings in Tuc-son. Ariz he had been asked son, Ariz., he had been asked by Mr. Hughes to agree to take a salary from the Hughes Tool a salary from the Hughes Tool Company — at that time the Hughes holding company.

Mr. Maheu said he refused because the salary pattern for executives in the company was too low, and that Mr. Hughes then told him that he should change his billing practices for his services at Tucson so that he would receive a sizable inhis services at Tucson so that he would receive a sizable income and, at the same time, conceal it from executives of the Hughes Tool Company who would be paid at lower rates.

Mr. Mahay said he made from

Mr. Maheu said he made from $35,000 to $60,000 a year that way, and that at the end of each year he reported to Mr.

each year he reported to Mr. Hughes how much he had made. This arrangement changed in 1967, Mr. Maheu testified. He said that after he threatened to resign when Mr. Hughes attempted to renege on an agreement that Mr. Maheu had made with the interests that owned the Desert Inn, Mr. Hughes said, "we will spend the rest of our natural lives" working together. Mr. Maheu said that he and Mr. Hughes agred that Mr. Maheu's company would be paid $10,000 a week form that time on.
