

House Vote On Nixon-- A Prediction

Washington

The House majority leader predicted yesterday that the House will impeach President Nixon if the Judiciary Committee recommends it.

"In my opinion, if the Judiciary Committee votes to impeach the President of the United States, I believe that he'll be impeached by a minimum of 80 votes and higher," said Representative Thomas P. O'Neill, (Dem-Mass.)

"I believe that if . . . they — the committee members — do not report impeachment, that the President would not be impeached by a similar vote," O'Neill added.

THOMAS P. O'NEILL
House majority leader

O'Neill made his comments in an interview on "Washington Straight Talk" on public television.

Associated Press