

Nixon and Ford Discuss
Summit and the Economy

WASHINGTON, July 8 (AP) —President Nixon met for more than an hour today with Vice President Ford to report on the Soviet Summit talks and to discuss unspecified domestic issues, a spokesman said.

The 75-minute meeting in the Oval Office was Mr. Nixon's first appointment of the morning in the White House, where he has spent only two full days in the last month.

Gerald L. Warren, the deputy White House press secretary, said he could not report "exactly what was discussed" between Mr. Nixon and Mr. Ford, but he said the President sought the meeting to review with the Vice President his recently concluded journey to the Soviet Union and no "discuss domestic legislation."

After his meeting with Mr. Ford, the President conferred with Caspar W. Winberger, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare.
