JUL 2 1 1974 NYTimes WEDNESDAY, JULY 24, 1

TAPE DESTRUCTION REPORTED REJECTED

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP) - President Nixon rejected sug-gestions from his staff that he destroy any White House tapes that might prove politically and historically embarrassing, the Washington bureau of the Cox newspapers reported today.

The article quoted a July 25, 1973, memorandum to the Pres-ident from his speech writer, Patrick J. Buchanan, who asked: "If ther are conversations with confidential aides, such as Charles Colson or H. R. Bob Haldeman exclusive of the so-called Watergate tapes that are better left confidential forever — what then is the sense of their preservation? "Perhaps the President should be provided with a day-by-day log of his tape library, and him-seelf separate the wheat from the chaff—from his own recol-lection — and have the latter burned." 1973, memorandum to the Pres-burned." Mr. Buchanan wrote his memo nine days after Alexan-der P. Butterfield, a former White House aide, disclosed in testimony before the Senate Watergate committee that Pres-idential conversations routinely were taped.

idential conversations routinely were taped. The article, written by David Kraslow and Eugene V. Risher, quoted a ranking official as say-ing Mr. Nixon rejected the ad-vice on the ground "it would be wrong — ethically, politically, legally. In fact, the mere act of destroying the tapes might have been considered by many peo-ple enough to warrant impeach-ment."

ment." The source also said: "For one thing, we knew there were a number of people around here who would not have stayed if that had happened. Those tapes could be evidence in an inves-tigation already under way. The President understood that. We all understood that."