SOMETHING or other that must have taken place within the past few days inspired Jeff Thomas to recall Hilaire Belloc's quatrain: "Here richly, with ridiculous display, the Politician's corpse was laid away. While all of his acquaintances sneered and slanged, I wept: for I had longed to see him hanged."

AMONG THOSE who will not be standing in line for his autograph when James McCord is in town to peddle his new book: Angela Davis. It was McCord who broke into her L.A. apt. to purloin, among other things, her love letters to the late George Jackson . . . There'll always be a press agent: During Expo Expo at the Cow Palace tomorrow, 27-yr-old Sean Hill marries 24-yr-old Anne Schlett aboard a ferris wheel, which isn't as far up, or out as it sounds since Sean owns it. The go-go-go: On Sept. 27, Liberty of the old City of ship.
