

57 Pct. Opposed Pardon Just Before Nixon Got It

By Louis Harris

At the moment President Ford was deciding to grant former President Nixon a full pardon, a 57-to-35 per cent majority of the American people felt that "it would be wrong for President Ford to pardon former President Nixon on the grounds that he has suffered enough."

Between Sept. 1 and 6, the Harris Survey polled a cross-section of 1,527 adults across the country and asked:

Do you think President Ford should pardon former President Nixon on the grounds he has suffered enough, or do you think such a pardon would be wrong?
