Tourists flocked to look at the former presidential compound

Key Biscayne Attraction

Key Biscayne, Fla.

About 700 sightseers spent part of Christmas Day peering through fences and over hedges for a look at what used to be a presidential compound.

Former President Nixon's two homes in the fenced-off compound are vacant, but tourists, who had heard the government's General Services Administration was pulling out its security details, thronged to the compound for a look.

The compound of five homes also includes residences of Nixon friends Robert Abplanalp and C. G. (Bebe) Rebozo.
