

Richard Nixon: 'Things Will Be Better

Former President Richard Nixon believes that "things will be a great deal better in 1975 than 1974" because "lots of things haven't been told" and Mrs. Nixon has long believed that the 1960 election was "stolen from us" by the Democrats, according to an article in the March Ladies Home Journal.

The story quotes Mrs. Nixon's social secretary at the White House, Lucy Winchester, as saying that "Pat's sad, but I think she's peaceful. She was such a prisoner at the White House. Now she feels free." And it says other friends deny that Mrs. Nixon has become a recluse, although she hardly ever leaves San Clemente.

new biography, "Kate," which is excerpted in the March McCall's.

"You're just as confused 40 years later as you were when you first heard about it," Miss Hepburn said. The article says that Miss Hepburn, despite her 25-year affair with Spencer Tracy, felt that actors had too many demands from their work to give "the necessary amount of attention to another human being" required in marriage.

Money

While the Congressional Black Caucus hasn't taken up singing for its supper, its legislative programs will benefit from the sale of a concert album to be released this spring.
