The Agua Caliente Indians, who have reservation land in and around Palm Springs, Calif., have hired Richard G. Kleindienst, the former Attorney General, to be their lawyer in Washington. Ray Patencio, tribal chairman, said Mr. Kleindienst would not take part in the tribe's long-running legal battle with the city of Palm Springs over the zoning of tribal land within the city limits.

Joining his constituents in the long lines for unemployment benefits is more than a political tactic for Raymond Moan, a Rhode Island state representative. The freshman legislator, aged 32, drives a truck for his father's company in West Warwick. Mr. Moan joined the ranks of Rhode Island's 60,000 unemployed—a rate over 14 per cent—in a layoff that was determined strictly by union
