Letter to Editor:

Of Nixon and Napoleon

To the Editor:

The headline of William Safire's May 5 column, "Report from Elba," was, I believe, ill chosen. First of all, it is utterly inappropriate to compare Mr. Nixon with a man of Napoleon's stature. Secondly, I assume that you do not mean to intimate that San Clemente is merely an Elba rather than St. Helena, and that we may have to endure Mr. Nixon's return, even if it were for 100 days only.
