Rabbi Korff Quits

Nixon Fund Post

(Reuter)

Rabbi Baruch Korff, one of the last defenders of former President Nixon, said yesterday he had resigned as head of a fund created to pay $400,000 of Nixon's outstanding legal fees.

Korff told a press conference that $25,000 had been paid to Nixon's lawyers recently, bringing the total fund payments to $190,000. A balance of $210,000 is owed, he said.

Korff said he was leaving the unpaid job because of family and personal reasons. He said a successor would be selected and money would continue to be collected by the President Nixon Justice Fund to pay for legal fees in court hearings involving Nixon's term as President.
