

Wednesday, August 6, 1975

On the set of "All the President's Men": stars Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman with John and Maureen Dean.

Associated Press

WKPPost AUG 6 1975
Now Playing: Mr. Dean
Goes to Hollywood

Former White House counsel John Dean III, the first of the President's men publicly to finger the White House in the Watergate scandal, took a tour Monday of the Hollywood movie set of "All the President's Men."

Robert Redford and Dustin Hoffman, who star in the movie, version of the book by Watergate reporters Bob Woodward and Carl Bernstein, took Dean and his wife, Maureen, on a lunchtime tour of the ersatz Washington Post newsroom which has been built in Warner Bros. Studio 11 at a cost of $450,000.

Personalities

Producer Walter Coblentz said yesterday, "It was a very informal meeting. We didn't discuss politics, we didn't discuss Nixon, we just discussed our picture and the newsroom."

Year in Office

Gerald Ford will have been President for one year today. First Lady Betty said they planned to quietly celebrate the anniversary. "It's kind of a private party."