

Julie Wants Her Dress Back

Fresh from her "Face the Nation" appearance, Julie Nixon Eisenhower turned up Monday at Famous-Barr Co. in St. Louis to promote her stitchery line for Paragon Needlecraft, and face the local press.

"I think its outrageous the government has my wedding gown, but I'm going to get it back," said Julie. The gown was impounded with other belongings of the Nixon family that were to go into a Nixon library.

She reported her father in good spirits, but called talk of an ambassadorship "not realistic." What about ten years from now? "The problem is his health is not that good and in ten years he'll be 73."
