

Stanford Invites Nixon, Davis And 33 Others

Former President Richard M. Nixon and Communist party member Angela Davis are among 35 persons invited to lecture during the spring quarter at Stanford University.

The invitations to Mr. Nixon and Miss Davis were mailed during the Christmas break by the guest professorship board of the Associated Students of Stanford.

There is about $10,000 in a fund established in 1974 when students voted to assess themselves a couple of dollars each to attract speakers or teachers to the campus. That year an invitation was sent to a South Korean political prisoner and last year it went to a Chilean political prisoner. Neither could make it.
