Former White House special Counsel Charles W. Colson told diners at a National Association of Evangelicals Monday that he regrets missing a chance to witness Nixon in the evangelical way. "After I accepted Christ, Nixon called me over," Colson said. "He told me he was falling on his knees every night and praying to God. I should have witnessed to him, but I didn't do it. Nixon was turned off by the hypocrisy of false politicians who always quote the Bible."
