Reagan Suggests Ford Quit the Race

By JAMES M, NAUGHTON

HICKORY, N. C., March 18-of evident deflation.

t in his andidacy. At one point, before a small crowd at the airport at in Fayetteville, the s self.

"Peole in the White House
eseem tithink I should be withdrawin from the campaign,'

Some in the crowd shouted,

ii"No!"
y
"Wel," Mr. Reagan said with a smile, "you took the word right out of my mouth."

campaign entourage was one either way," Mr. Reagan disre-

Ronald Reagan, struggling for James Stewart, the film actor, that he would lose in North survival in the Republican primaries, blithely suggested to day that President Ford leave the Presidential race.

"Tell him to quit," Mr. Reagan said of the President. He made the remark to reporters in defiance of gathering pressure from the White House for a decision by the former California Governor to end his insurgency and help strengthen Mr. Ford's candidacy in November.

Even if he should lose the sixth successive primary next Tresday in North Carolina Mr. Reagan in what observ.

Carolina. Even if he should, he told questioners, it would not be divisive to the party to continue opposing Mr. Ford. Referring to the substantial minorities who supported him in New Hampshire, Florida and Illinois, Mr. Reagan said: "What do you say to that half of the Republican Party? Are they no longer wanted? What do you say to the 48 percent or 47 percent? Do they go somewhere else?"

Some in his entourage read significance into a remark Mr. survival in the Republican pri- accompanied the one-time mov- Carolina. Even if he should, thumg chances visive.

"That pressure is engineered from the same place that they engineered the pressure for me not to ran in the first place—the White House," Mr. Reagan said in Greensboro. "I'm not going to pay any attention to them now, when they suggest that I should quit. Tell him to quit."

Heand Crowd Agree

Everywhere Mr. Reagan went as he skipped from the coastal plains to the Piedmont region and back today, he was none theless isked why he persisted in his andidacy. At one point, before a small crowd at the airport at in Fayetteville, the candidae raised the issue himself.

"Peole in the White House" it two weeks as that the former Governor had proposed investing the Social gan and urge him to drop out of the Republican Presidential nomination race, the White House press secretary, Ron Rossen, said today.

"T'm sure he must have house how hampshire campaign, every place I spoke and every place I spoke and every place I answered questions [Mr. Ford] had a man there with a tape recording everything I said.

"Maybe they erased 18 minutes or something," he added. Last week, in Illinois, Mr. Reagan alluded to the Waters are such as an issue garnization to do this," Mr. Nessen said.

"The President has not asked or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan said today.

"The President has not asked or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to contact anyone in the Reagan or authorized anyone to c sion only once, and his supportant talk to "cross back and forth alt of Nevada, said it was an "unfortunate" mistake.

Nofziger Back in Capital

But the tone of Mr. Reagan's as a close one that "could go garded the prevalent judgment ber.

Even if he should lose the sixth successive primary next Tuesday in North Carolina, Mr. Reagan said, he will continue his candidacy in expectation of a revival in subsequent Southern and Southwestern state primaries.

"For heaven's sakes, fellows, let's not be naive," Mr. Reagan told reporters who asked him about the Ford organization's broad public hints that a continuing challenge would be divisive.

"That pressure is engineered from the same place that they engineered the pressure for me not to run in the first place—not to run in the first place—with the White Howe it has a continuing challenge with the with the work and watergate.

Oli, "gushed a wollan in can't believe it! I've seen Ronald Reagan, but there's Jimmy Stewart!"

Some in his entourage read significance into a remark Mr. Reagan made in Greensboro, however, that the sudden emphasis on a possible with from that Mr. Ford, as the nominee, would be beset by memories of his predecessor, Richard M. Nixon and Watergate.

Describing his position on Social Security to a television interviewer, Mr. Reagan said that President Ford had twisted it two weeks ago by charging asked or authorized anyone to that the former Governor had get in touch with Ronald Reagan, but there's Jimmy Stewart!"

Some in his entourage read significance into a remark Mr. Reagan made in Greensboro, however, that the sudden emphasis on a possible with-drawal reflected the "effective ness" of the President's strategy of underlining early Ford victories.

Move by Ford Denied WASHINGTON, March 18 (UPI)—President Ford has not get in touch with Ronald Reagan, but there's Jimmy Stewart!"

It was seen Ronald Reagan, but there's Jimmy Stewart!"

Some in his entourage read significance into a remark Mr. Reagan as a fresh sign of frustration, remarks on a possible with-drawal reflected the "effective ness" of the President Ford has not interviewer, Mr. Reagan said that President Ford had twisted to the president for the president for the president for the president for the president fo

Ford Recalling Vehicles

"No!"
"Wel," Mr. Reagan said with a smile, "you took the word right out of my mouth."
He insisted, to apparently dubious television interviewers and barely exhuberant partisans at rallies around the state, that he had done at least as well as planned in the early primaries and that he had, in fact, equaled vote totals that political pundits had said last fall would imperil Mr. Ford's candidacy.

Nofziger Back in Capital

Another indication of disarray in Mr. Reagan's camp was the abrupt departure for Washington this morning of Frank-lyn Nofziger, the candidate's spokesman. Aides dismissed the trip as "no big thing," a routine appearance at the national campaign office, but it was the first time since Mr. Reagan and 1975 B-series bus chassis began his candidacy that Mr. Nofziger absented himself from suspension that could result in a loss of steering control. Involved in the recall are 1974 and 1975 F-series, long-wheel base trucks manufactured and sold in the United States, Ford said.