Connally Sworn In

Washington

John Connally re-entered public life yesterday as a member of President Ford's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board.

The 16-member board was sworn in at a White House Rose Garden ceremony. Mr. Ford had announced formation of the board after a year of hearings by House and Senate committees into illegal U.S. intelligence activities.

The former Texas governor and treasury secretary was acquitted last April 17 on charges of accepting $10,000 from the Associated Milk Producers, Inc., the nation's largest dairy cooperative, allegedly for getting the Nixon administration to raise federal milk price supports.

Connally influences votes in Texas, where Mr. Ford and Ronald Reagan vie in the May 1 primary.

Reagan is believed to have a good chance of inflicting a second primary defeat — North Carolina was the first in six contests with the President — upon Mr. Ford. Despite wooing from both sides, Connally has remained neutral.
