

NYTimes

JUL 16 1976

Pat Nixon walked on her own yesterday, for the first time since her stroke on July 7, and her physical therapist said the steps were "a most significant sign of improvement" for the wife of the former President. A spokesman for Long Beach Memorial Hospital said Mrs. Nixon could be released from the hospital as early as Monday but more likely would stay longer, depending on her response to her two 20-minute therapy periods each day.