CHARMED LIFE: Dapper, debonair, some of the "Othello," wily. These were just some of the John Hancock and to Carl-Henrik Petersen,

★ General, dominated the CAENFETTI: If you've never had a few years pleasure of seeing Ronald Reagan of an formed by a chimp, "Bedtime for Bonzo" witty be shown Sept. 12 at noon on Ch. 44 for about the 44th time . . . Mayor Moscone and his longtime political ally, Assemblyman Willie Brown, met in Manhattan last Fri. night and patched up what might have become a permanent rift; Moscone had been sore at Willie for pushing through a last-minute amendment in Sacramento without telling him, Willie was sore at George for getting sore, and so it went . . . I wonder what he meant by that dept. (Director Tito Capobianco, quoted in last Fri.'s Chron about the S.F. Opera's radio broadcasts): "They're an important step in helping to poison the minds of American youth from 8 to 80" . . . Only-in-Sausalito scene at Gate 5: the falling-down wreck of a house with a new sign over its front door, reading "Richard M. Nixon Memorial Library."
