"DER TAG" (HERR DAY) DAWNS FOR THE NAZIS

*Show me his friends, and I the man shall know,
This wiser turn a larger wisdom lends.
Show me the books he loves, and I shall know
The man far better than through mortal friends.
---Silas Weir Mitchell*

An old adage reads: "A man is known by the company he keeps". A member of the United States Congress is keeping company with Charles B. Hudson, Charles W. Phillips, William Kullgren, William Dudley Pelley, G. Allison Phelps, Gerald L. K. Smith, and the publishers of Flanders Hall books, of "The Octopus", "Roll-Call" and "The American Digest". In him centers their hope for a permanent "Man on Horseback" for whom they have hunted so diligently. Subversivists named in this issue rally around him, distribute reprints of his speeches, and peddle a book he recently wrote. He is Congressman-at-Large for the State of Illinois -- Stephen A. Day!

NRS has frequently pointed out that franking privileges of many members of Congress are advantageously exploited by the enemies of this nation.

Stephen A. Day permitted Charles B. Hudson, subversivist de luxe of Omaha, to send out reprints of his (Day's) speeches under Congressional mailing franchises. Charles W. Phillips of Lincoln, Nebr., Nazi pamphleteer and publisher of "The Individualist", attached to his August 7th issue a reprint of Day's speech, "Congressmen Must Keep Faith With Selectees", accompanied by a note (illustration on page 5), which read:

I have extra copies of the enclosed reprint. If you desire more to distribute at your local meetings or to mail to others, as long as the supply lasts I will send them to you at your request.

The Taxpayer Foots the Bill

On July 19th, 1941, approximately 150 Nazi sympathizers attended an open forum, held each Saturday night, at Dr. Richter's Health Cafeteria, 325 West Third Street, Los Angeles. Here the Los Angeles Downtown Branch of the America First Committee holds its regular meetings each Monday night under the chairmanship of Benjamin Franklin Ballard, one of the organizers of a Nazi group which called itself the "American Guards". The same Nazi agitators frequent both meetings.

Front cover of Congressman Day's book, which is widely heralded by U. S. Nazis.

At this gathering, plans were discussed to picket the Hollywood Bowl, where Wendell L. Willkie was to address a "Fight for Freedom" rally. Attendants -- all Nazis -- were given large batches of reprints from the Congressional Record, of a speech delivered by Congressman Day on June 15th, 1941, entitled "We Must Keep America Independent". The reprints were inserted in the Congressman's envelope (illustration on page 4), and the Nazis had only to address and mail them -- at the expense of John Q. Taxpayer!

On August 1st, 1941, Day inserted in the Congressional Record a speech which he had delivered over the radio on the preceding day. He advertised and quoted from a book he had written, entitled "We Must Save the Republic". On the day of his broadcast, "The Free American" (also known as the Deutscher Weckruf und Beobachter) official organ of the German-American Bund, carried the following paragraphs in its weekly feature column, "Behind the Curtain":

Two books of clean print and attractive binding from the press of Flanders Hall (Scotch Plains, N. J.), hold first place in this writer's interest. One is "It Happened Again", the other "We Must Save the Republic". The first is the most complete compilation of the train of events that led to the Polish war and thence directly to World War No. 2. The second is a brief for the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States by Stephen A. Day, Congressman-at-Large from Illinois.

"It Happened Again" admits the reader to the inner councils of Berlin, London, Warsaw and Paris in a way that reads like a novel as it conducts him through the intricacies of the problem that made the German-Polish war inevitable. It puts the reader behind the scenes -- not as propaganda, nor yet as dry historical recording, but as a documented narrative sparkling with life and pulsating with truth truth that Americans sadly need to know what this war's about and why "it happened again".

The companion volume by Congressman Day, like the former, is practically a handbook of information about our Anglomanics, the author and backers of Union Now and "how the cards are stacked by the administration", according to Mr. Day, so that the people cannot learn the truth--how successive "emergencies" are faked, so that today we literally have government by emergencies rather than government in accordance with the American constitutional system. The seven chapters include the titles, "Unmasking a Fraud", "Independent America vs. the Fifth Columnist Federation", "The Invasion Myth", "Shall We Follow George Washington or Benedict Arnold?" "Some Observations on the Proposal to Wreck the Constitution to Put Over Union Now". (Price, $1).

Congressman Day did not tell his radio audience of the Bund's warm praise for his book. Nor did he make any reference to Flanders Hall, publishers of Scotch Plains, N. J. The latter, exposed in NRS #126 as a Nazi propaganda agency, hurriedly registered with the State Department as agent for a foreign country. In hooking up with Flanders Hall, Day followed in the footsteps of the late Senator Ernest Lundeen, who had helped to put over the Flanders Hall book, "Lord Lothian vs. Lord Lothian".

Another fact the Congressman does not choose to broadcast is that grand jury hearings are now being conducted in Washington, and that among others, Elizabeth Dilling, who has had much to do with the sales promotion of Flanders Hall books, has been subpoenaed, according to the daily press.

Undoubtedly this grand jury investigation is responsible for the fact that Congressman Day's book is now published by the Shaw Publishing Company, 1311 G Street, N.W., Washington, D. C.

The Beacon Light Beckons

William Kullgren of Atascadero, Cal., publisher of a mumbo-jumbo, stargazer magazine calling itself "The Beacon Light" -- widely read in all Nazi circles -- refers to Congressman Day's brainchild as a "must" book (illustration on page 4). Reviewing it, he says: "Briefly, he (Day) knits together the teachings of the Protocols....To sum it up, here is one of the finest compilations of facts presented to the American public." Of course, Kullgren accepts the forged Protocols as "facts". Interesting also is the opening paragraph of the review, which states: "Certainly the most dynamic book we have reviewed since The Octopus, and just as revealing in its own line. This is the book for you who are faint-hearted and discouraged." (The Octopus, the new U.S.-Nazi bible published by Charles B. Hudson, was exposed as a fake in NRS #140.)

Kullgren's September issue also contains a reprint of Congressman Day's radio address, "We Must Keep America Independent" (illustration on page 8). Referring to the reprint, Kullgren states:

We are inserting in this issue a reprint from the Congressional Record, a radio address by Hon. Stephen A. Day, entitled "We Must Keep America Independent". A small group of patriots has educated a large portion of the American public as to the cause of their miseries. Two years ago, we tried to draw these groups together through our paper, "America Speaks", but met with indifference from the various leaders. We need a national leader to draw these people together and march them to Washington. I take great pleasure in advocating this. This plan has been advocated by Charles Hudson, in Omaha, for some time.

In each issue, Kullgren prints a long list of books (illustration on page 4) for which he accepts orders from his readers. In this list he advertises Stephen A. Day's masterpiece, and publications by Elizabeth Dilling, Nesta H. Webster, Gerald B. Winrod, G. Allison Phelps, Colonel E. N. Sanctuary, T. W. Hughes, Oscar Brumbach, General George van Horn Moseley, Shaemas O'Sheel -- all of whom have been exposed by NRS. Also advertised are The Octopus, the forged "Protocols", and "Lord Lothian vs. Lord Lothian". Author Stephen A. Day certainly finds himself in good company in this list of "Books You Should Read".

"Give Us This Day", Prays Pelley

On August 11th, William Dudley Pelley, Silver Shirt leader and ex-convict, devoted the entire front page of his weekly "Roll-Call" to a hymn of praise of the Congressman, captioning the article "Will Stephen A. Day Save This Republic?" (illustration on page 5).

Ever since Pelley announced his intention of becoming the first American Fuhrer to occupy the White House, he has maintained close connections with officials who were foolish enough to accept his writings as gospel. He influenced the late Congressman Louis T. McFadden of Pennsylvania to insert Nazi propaganda material into the Congressional Record; and he had ex-Congressman Jacob Thorkelson of Montana eating out of his hand. In Montana, it was said after the latter's defeat for re-election, that by their praise his Nazis friends had given Thorkelson the kiss of death. Pelley has always found someone in the House or Senate to agree with him. His latest discovery is Congressman Day. Of him Pelley says:

Representative Day suddenly rises head and shoulders above his compatriots in the Congress and introduces a joint resolution to save the Republic. Representative Day's method for saving the Republic is a sound method -- a method that assails the vital core of our distempers. His joint resolution calls for a rescinding of the lend-lease -- and thereby the war making -- powers of the Great Promise Breaker, dickering at the moment to trade the Republic to Britain.

In another article, captioned "Meet Stephen Day", Pelley gives a detailed account of the Congressman's past, the schools and universities he attended, the posts he held, etc., saying:

He (Day) takes his place on the patriotic honor roll along with Charles A. Lindbergh, Senators Gerald Nye and Burton K. Wheeler, Jr. Jacob Thorkelson and more.

Yes, there was a great deal of debate done in Congress in those days. Many Senators and Representatives, opposed to the administration bill, predicted that in time this first step would be followed by others, lead towards war; that the "allies" would soon for loans and credits; that we would extend credits; that we ultimately would go to war to save the credits by saving our debtors. BOOK REVIEWS

WE MUST SAVE THE REPUBLIC: By Hon. Stephen A. Day.

Certainly the most dynamic book we have reviewed since The Octopus, and just as revealing in its own line. This is the book for you who are faint-hearted and discouraged. This book will raise your temperature and stimulate you to action, providing you are an American—I mean in spirit; being born in America doesn't necessarily make you an American, witness the New Deal gang, about half of whom were born in America.

Congressman Day opens up by agreeing with the President that the Republic is in grave danger; but they do not agree as to the source of the danger. Mr. Roosevelt says it is in Europe; Congressman Day says, and further proves that our danger is within our own gates. He says a wrecking crew is in charge, most of them of American birth.

The first of them deals with Clarence Streit's 'Union Now' and by presenting the before that, drafted by another Roosevelt and ...

We could go on and on; briefly, he knits together the teachings of the Protocols and ties in the various Jewish leaders. Frankfurter, Cohen, Laski, who wrote 'Where Do We go From Here', Andrew Carnegie, Clarence Streit and a host of others. He shows you clearly the program of Union Now; certainly it is not one of national defense, but one of cruel aggression against all who dare differ with them. Union Now is but the last step of the Jewish hierarchy to control and dominate the whole world. If you want arguments to use on those who believe in Union Now, the New Deal and the various phases of the Jewish program of world dictatorship, you will find them in 'We Must Save the Republic'.

This is the perfect time for the book, since the author is constantly in the news and on the radio."

The book is attractively gotten up, and sells for $1.00; I would call it a "Must" book.

....Whether the revolting 77th Congress will generate sufficient spunk and genuine patriotism to go down the line with Representative Day, remains to be seen....If the 77th Congress really wants to go the whole hog on the revolt, here is its chance to prove whether it is composed of Christian patriots or Stalin-Roosevelt instruments -- whether they love their country more than they love Jewish-controlled Russia, with Jewish-controlled Britain thrown in for boot!

The Coughlinites, too, have nothing but praise for the Illinois Representative. The July 1941 issue of "The American Digest", formerly known as the "Social Justice Digest", published in St. Louis, carried a front page article commending Day for his broadcast of June 15th, and reprinted the first part of the address (the second part appeared in the August issue). Day, according to the Digest, lashed out against those Britons and Americans who have for many years been plotting to overthrow the independent government of the USA. Many Congressmen are now aware of this dastardly plot. A few of the braver ones are practically risking their lives on the battlefield of Congress to save our Republic from the intrigues of the British Empire.

Such rot is offered as reading diet to the gullible public for no other purpose than to create disunity in the nation and distrust of the administration's foreign policy. Playing on the favorite Nazi theme, the article continues:

....Events have proven that we were in possession of startling facts which were still hidden from the American people. Again our position is vindicated.

Once Day's book was off the press, Nazis began to peddle and advertise it from coast to coast. G. Allison Phelps (exposed in NRS #157) informed his radio audience on August 18th that he was authorized by the Congressman to take orders for the book.

Phelps, however, is not alone in Southern California in plugging the Day volume. Ballard read long excerpts of it at the America First meetings, held on August 18th and September 1st, 1941, at Richter's Cafeteria. The book was also quoted at other America First gatherings, and people were asked to write and congratulate the Congressman.

Playing Politics or Havoc?

Congressman Day is playing politics with the welfare and security of the country. Solons of his stripe believe in the Lindberghian "Wave of the Future", and aspire to ride on its crest. While playing up to the mob -- as when he appeared before Gerald L. K. Smith's "Committee of 1,000,000" (related in last week's NRS) -- Day counts his imaginary votes at future elections. The very forces he is trying to arouse will destroy the country's democratic institutions, but he has nothing to fear -- he sublimely believes -- for is he not on record as one who has prepared the way for them?

Day keeps a political eye on his home state, where The Chicago Tribune, king-pin of the isolationist anti-New Deal press, rules supreme. He watches, and is duly impressed by, the threats of blackmail of the "German-American National Alliance" (exposed in NRS #88) whose "News Letter" for September makes it clear that the organization is out to get the scalps of all Congressmen who support the President's Foreign Policy.

Paul A. F. Warnholtz, Chairman of Public Relations Committee of the Alliance, blossoms forth with a front page article in the current issue, captioned "Five U. S. Congressmen" (illustration on pages 4 and 5).

Like Hitler, Like Warnholtz

"Americanism is asserting itself," says Warnholtz in his lead, "and good old Chicago is slowly following the brilliant lead which the great state of Illinois took during the last national election." Gloomily, he recounts how nine out of ten Congressmen from Chicago voted for the lifting of the Arms Embargo, but he finds solace in the fact that soon there will be another election and then, he prognosticates, a different wind will blow in the halls of Congress. Gleefully he points to the straws in the wind. "Nine out of ten," he writes, "such was the vote in Congress, and time went on. The people of the United States learned something about solemn pledges being merely 'campaign oratory', and that promises made by candidates before election meant nothing at all. Grin, you political jokers," says Warnholtz, "and the people can be fooled. Maybe!"

But the little Nazi writer is encouraged since only eight out of ten Chicago Congressmen voted for the Lend-Lease Bill; and the Draft Extension Bill passed by just one vote. Warnholtz heartily approves of the five (out of ten) Chicago Congressmen who voted against the Draft Extension Plan. Pointing to the "Yeas", he asks in stentorian tones, "Whose vote was that one?" and he thunders; "That vote must be charged against everyone who supported the bill."

Like the little paperhanger with the Chaplin mustache, Herr Warnholtz warns that the day of reckoning will come. Here (at the right) are his own words, as they appeared originally in the German-American National Alliance publication:

LET US WATCH THESE MEN

In the meantime, we shall watch particularly the actions in Congress of the following men from Illinois, who voted that the conscripts, our sons, should remain conscripts for 2-1/2 years instead of one year, and that an unlimited number be conscripted:

"Day Brings It Into Light"

Several weeks ago, an NRS informant, who speaks German fluently, submitted a report which at that time appeared somewhat meaningless. Since then, however, it takes on significance. The report follows:

I was at the German House last night. Hermann Schwinn, Hans Diebel, Willi Kendzia, and a person from the east whose identity I was unable to learn, were in conversation. They spoke German and talked of "a big fellow in Washington who is all right, and who'll start the ball rolling". They did not mention his name.

They took the German saying, "Die Sonne bringt es an den Tag" and reversed it to "Der Tag bringt es an die Sonne". They repeated this phrase several times during the course of the conversation.

I don't know what to make of it, but we'll have to watch for a recurrence of this phrase for further clues to find out who "the big fellow in Washington" is.

The literal translation of Die Sonne bringt es an den Tag is "The sun brings it to day". It is used to express the thought that dark matters are brought into light of day by the glaring sun. In reverse, as used by the Nazis, it means "Day brings it into light".

Is der Tag Congressman Day?

RADIO ADDRESS
OF

HON. STEPHEN A. DAY

OF ILLINOIS

June 15, 1941

(Printed in the CONGRESSIONAL RECORD of June 16, 1941)

Mr. DAY. Mr. Speaker, under leave to extend my remarks in the RECORD, I include the following address which I delivered yesterday over the radio:

Before I was elected to the Congress of the United States, I promised the people that I would take the radio and issue a call for their support when I found that the Nation which we love so dearly was in danger. I am completely satisfied that a grave peril now confronts us. Unless we act immediately and a vigorous protest from all loyal citizens reaches Washington at once, our form of Government under the Constitution and our American independence will be overthrown not by a foreign invasion using military force but by a treasonable betrayal which is already in the making.

There is a powerful movement thoroughly financed throughout the British Empire and in all parts of the United States to surrender great, free America into a permanent confederation or union which will cancel the Declaration of Independence written by Thomas Jefferson in 1776 and completely undermine the Constitution of the United States. Hore Bellsha, former Secretary for War in London, this week stated publicly that the plans have been worked out and it now awaits a word from Winston Churchill and President Roosevelt to complete the colossal surrender of all time. While we have been engaged in discussing the wars in Europe, Asia, and Africa, and whether the United States will be involved, the first secret steps have been undertaken.

Millions of good Americans were shocked when the Congress passed the lend-lease bill. What did it mean? What was to become of the Johnson Act forbidding loans to nations which have not paid their debts owing to us from the first World War? What was to become of the Neutrality Act, with its cash and carry provisions? Why did President Roosevelt turn over 50 of our destroyers to Britain without payment? Why did the President say that Britain was fighting our war and that our first line of defense was on the Rhine? Why was Stimson made Secretary of War? Why was Knox made Secretary of the Navy? Why did Ambassador Kennedy resign his post as our Ambassador to Great Britain? Why did Ambassador Bullitt who represented us in France tell the French that if they started the war we would finish it? Why have the American people been urged to aid Britain "short of war"? Why did President Roosevelt promise the American people that our boys would never be sent to fight and die in a foreign war?

All these questions can be answered when we understand that we are to become a part of the British Empire. All news now coming out of Washington is censored, and the people are not told the facts. The truth is known only to the President and those within the inner circle handling and operating the $7,000,000,000 of war materials which we are giving to Britain. When the plan for union with Britain is completed there will be no need for Britain to repay us, since the American people and all subjects of the British Empire in Canada, Australia, New Zealand, South Africa, India, Ireland, the British Isles, and Africa will be all citizens of the govern-
