A good clear picture of knoll area. (< 2117

The missing first page of FBI investigation of claims made in "Red Roses of Dallas", with first three items and perhaps identification of the title (XXV, 851, CE 2580).

One instance of direct, unequivocal testimony that a clip was found in the Carcano, to support the Commission's categorical statement (R, 555/2) that "when the rifle was found in the Texas School Book Depository Building it contained a clip."

A picture of Billy Lovelady standing in the doorway of TMBD, taken from the same distance (perhaps by James Altgens, using the same camera), for comparison with the picture taken Nov. 22.

Miss Moorman's pictures CE 1426; VI 220.

Test of rifle C2766 from TSBD, for time and accuracy, with moving target.

CE 323 (26 pages), reproduction of handwritten diary of Robert Oswald. Handwriting is so tortured it is almost impossible to read. (Commission had so much difficulty deciphering it, Robert was asked to dictate it to the court reporter, "The Commission would appreciate it if you would interpret your own handwriting on the exhibit." I, 349.)

CE 460, reproduction of Mrs. Paine's typewritten article on Oswald, completely legible, is set up in print and repeated in full. This could also have been done for CE 323; it should have been done.

Reproduction of Klein advertisement, American Rifleman, February 1963.

X-rays made at time of JFK autopsy. Commander Humes: "... those X-rays are available." II, 364.

Colored movie film taken by Robert J.E. Hughes, taken just prior to assassination, with TSBD in full, including 6th floor window. (CE 2591.)

Movie film taken by Ralph Simpson at assassination site.

Testimony of Sgt. Patrick Dean, XII 443

"No latent prints of value were developed on ... the clip in the rifle ... !

CE 2003, p. 264, FBI report, Nov. 23, 1963.
