

Jackie Thinking About a Trip To Cambodia

Washington

Jacqueline Kennedy, who has been reading her way through a list of scholarly books on Cambodia, has secured a visa for that country.

A source close to the Kennedys says she is currently "vascillating" about a trip to Southeast Asia. While she is making up her mind, her staff is completing travel arrangements to that everything will be in readiness "just in case."

A factor said to be delaying Mrs. Kennedy's decision is the proximity of the fighting in Vietnam.
