THE NEW YORK TIMES, F.

While His Wife Swims, Onassis Talks Business With Premier

United Press International

Before returning to the island of Skorpios, Aristotle S. Onassis talks with son, Alexander, at airport in Athens.

By ALVIN SHUSTER

Special to The New York Times

ATHENS, Oct. 24—Aristotle candidate for excommunication Socrates Onassis flew to was a "lot of nonsense."

Athens today to talk business Mr. Onassis reported that he Athens today to talk business while his wife, the former Mrs. John F. Kennedy, went swimming off the Onassis-owned island of Skorpios.

Before he returned to his island, in the Ionian sea, tonight, Mr. Onassis conferred with Premier George Papadopoulos for five hours on a $360-million investment package for Greece.

Local newsmen said that he lage for Greece.

Local newsmen said that he told them that he and his wife had telephoned Richard Cardinal Cushing, Archbishop of Boston, today to thank him for his defense of their Greek Orthodox wedding.

Roman Catholic clergymen, including some in the Vatican, have said that the new Mrs. Onassis' marriage was invalid in the eyes of the church because of her husband's 1960 divorce.

Cardinal Cushing said that that talk of her as a public sinner and power 17 months ago.