Dear Bruce:

This is belated thanks for the various reproductions which you so thoughtfully have sent along. We appreciate them all and will reimburse you for your costs when we see you. We hope that will be soon, and we are trying to arrange our lives so that we can have you over again as soon as possible.

The reason you have not heard from us recently is that we don't know how to reach you by phone and have been living so erratically that it has been difficult to make firm time commitments very far ahead.

I had a brief vacation late in October, most of which we spent trying to get ourselves current again (only partial success, I regret to report) and also during which we made a flying trip to British Columbia to see some friends and explore certain possibilities for the future. In a couple of the newspapers we picked up I find references to the Georgia Straight publication at Vancouver, which appears to have been suppressed, presumably because it offended some rather conservative tastes. At ~~this~~ the time I had forgotten about the Straight's article on George Howland, but when we returned your copy of it was waiting for us. I'm sending them along for your possible interest. One is a letter to the editor of the Vancouver Province, the other an editorial in the Osoyoos Times, a weekly published at Osoyoos about 200 miles inland and very near the border with the United States. As far as I can determine (there is really no indication one way or another) the suppression of the Straight had no apparent relationship to its publication of the George Howland story.

If you have a telephone, or access to one through which we could contact you fairly readily and which you can give out, please let us know. We like to be able to get in contact with you more conveniently than the mail makes possible.

Best,

James W. White
