Austin, Tex., Jan. 14 (AP)- Jack Ruby's appeal -- three boxes of court material weighing 380 pounds -- reached the Texas Court of Criminal Appeals today, where the court will consider the death sentence assessed him for killing Lee Harvey Oswald, assassin of President Kennedy.

One of the first items pulled from the cardboard boxes was a snub-nosed .38 caliber revolver, identified at the trial as the murder weapon.

Two of the boxes, about three feet high, were filled with newspapers tied with a string, and the other had the trial transcript, statement of facts and exhibits, such as photographs.

The boxes were moved from a large truckvan into a small room near the court's chambers, but court clerk Glenn Hayes said some of the evidence may be kept in a vault.

Hayes said a date for oral arguments before the state's highest tribunal for criminal cases will be set probably for March.

Ruby was convicted March 14 of shooting Oswald to death in the basement of Dallas police headquarters Nov. 24, 1963, two days after Kennedy's assassination. Oswald had been charged with murder but had not been tried and made no confession.

The 53-year-old Ruby, a former Dallas night club owner, is in the Dallas County jail.
