SEC FBI

2.16

NEW YORK TIMES, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1964.

Excerpts From J. E. Hoover's Testimony

WASHINGTON, Oct. 2 (AP) -Following are excerpts from testimony of J. Edgar Hoover, director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, before the Warren Commission on May 14, as reported in a copyrighted article today by The Washing-ton Star.

article today by the final stars ton Star: Representative Gerald Ford —Is the Federal Bureau of Investigation continuing its investigation of all possible ramifications of this assassination? Mr. Hoover—I can assure

Mr. Hoover—I can assure you, so far as the F.B.I. is concerned, the case will be continued in an open classifi-cation for all time. I think this will be a matter of con-troversy for years to come, just like the Lincoln assassi-nation nation.

Just like the Lincoln assassi-nation. Just how far you are going to go for his [The Presi-dent's] protection and his security? I don't think you can get absolute security without almost establishing a police state, and we don't want that. You can't put se-curity in a black groove or a white groove. It is in a gray groove, and certain chances have to be taken. You are dealing with a hu-man being when you are dealing with the President of the United States. President Johnson is a very down-to-earth human being, and it makes the security problem all the more difficult, but you can't bar him from the people. can't bar him from the people.

Submitted Memorandum

There are certain things that can be done, and I sub-mitted a memorandum to the Secret Service and to the White House on certain se-curity steps that might be taken and tightened up. But, when we up and docling with taken and tightened up. But, when you are dealing with the general public, and that is what has given me great concern in the recent expan-sion of the criteria for dis-semination [to the Secret Service] that we have adopt-ed after the assassination. Prior to that time we re-ported to the Secret Service all information that dealt with individuals who were po-tential killers or by whom acts of violence might be an-ticipated. The Secret Service would take that information acts of violence might be an-ticipated. The Secret Service would take that information and would do with it as they saw fit. I gave great consid-eration to it because I am not very happy with the cri-teria expansion, but I felt we had to include subversives of various character, and ex-tremists. We have, in turn, furnished their names to the Secret Service. I think 5,000 names up to the present time already have been submitted and there are at least three or four thousand more that will be submitted within the next few months. Call on Local Authorities Then you come to the orob-lem of what you are going to do when the Secret Service gets those names. They have to call upon the local au-thorities. Just recently, in the city of Chicago, when the President was there, the local authorities were asked to give authorities were asked to give assistance as they usually do to the Secret Service and they went to the homes of some of these people, and it resulted really almost in a house arrest resulted really almost in a house arrest. Now, I don't think there is any place in this country for that kind of thing, but these people who belonged to ex-treme subversive organiza-tions or organizations that ad-tions or organizations that ad-vocated the overthrow of gov-ernment by force and violence were told that they couldn't leave their house or if they did they would be accom-panied by a police officer. That gives me great con-cern because in New York City alone, you run into may-be three or four thousand such individuals who would be members of subversive or-ganizations, and then you get into the twilight zone of sub-versive fronts. Merely because a man be-longs to subversive front or-ganizations in my estimation anizations in my estimation doesn't mean that he is black-listed and is a menace to the country for life. We found no indication at all that Oswald was a man addicted to violence.

J. Edgar Hoover

The first indication of an act of violence came after he, Oswald, had been killed, and Mrs. Oswald told us about the attempt on General Walker's life by Oswald. No one had known a thing about that.

We went back into his Marine Corps record. He was a "loner." He didn't have many friends. He kept to himself, and when he went abroad, he defected to Russia. The first evidence we had of him in our file was a state-ment to the press in Moscow. And then, later, about 22 months later, he returned to the embassy there and according to the report of the embassy we have and which the commission has been furhished with, the embassy gave him a clean bill. He had seen the error of he had seen the error or his ways and disliked the So-viet atmosphere, et cetera, and they, therefore, cleared him, paid his way and paid his wife's way to come back his wife's way to this country.

to this country. Representative Hale Boggs —You have spent your life studying criminology and vio-lence and subversion. Would you care to speculate on what may have motivated the may man?

'Dedicated Communist'

Mr. Hoover-My specula-tion, Mr. Boggs, is the fact that this man was no doubt a dedicated Communist. He preferred to call himself a Marx-ist but there you can get into the field of semantics. He was a Communist, he sympathized thoroughly with the Commuthoroughly with the Commu-nist cause. I don't believe now, as I look back on it, that he ever changed his views when he asked to come back to this country. I personally feel that when he went to the Ameri-can Embassy in Moscow originally to renounce his citizenship he should have been able right then and there to sign the renouncement.

to sign the renouncement. He never could have gotten back here. I think that should back here. I think that should apply to almost all defectors who want to defect and become a part of a system of government that is entirely foreign to ours. If they have that desire, they have got that right, but if they indicate a desire for it, let them re-nounce their citizenship at once. once.

We had interviewed him, I We had interviewed him, I think, three times. Of course, our interviews were predi-cated to find out whether he had been recruited by the Russian intelligence service, because they frequently do that.

Mr. Boggs-And had he been?

been? Mr. Hoover—He had not been, so he said, and we have no proof that he was. He had been over there long enough but they never gave him citizenship in Rus-sia at all. I think they prob-ably looked upon him more as a kind of a queer sort of individual and they didn't trust him too strongly. They do have espionage and sabotage schools in Rus-sia and they do have an assia and they do have an as-sassination squad that is used by them but there is no in-dication he had any associa-tion with anything.

tion with anything: There are many people who read The Daily Worker, or what is now The Worker, and you certainly can't brand them as hazards to the se-curity of the country or as potential assassins. It is in that area that I am partic-ularly concerned that we don't become hysterical and ularly concerned that we don't become hysterical and go too far in restricting the citizens of our country from exercising their civil and con-stitutional rights. The mere fact a person disagrees with you in a matter on commu-nism doesn't mean he should hism doesn't mean he should be arrested. But, all in all, I think that the enforcement of security and the enforcement of laws dealing with subversion ought to be handled in the Ameri-

3

PET 1964

to be handled in the Ameri-can manner. Prior to the assassination of the President, a defector, before he came back, was al-ways cleared for return by a representative of the State Department or the military abroad. When he came back we immediately interviewed him. It had to be done at once to determine whether he could be a potential intelli-gence agent. Expanded Lists

Expanded Lists

Now, in December of last Expanded Lists Now, in December of last year, following the assassi-nation, we expanded the cri-teria of what should be fur-nished to the Secret Service, and all defectors automati-cally go on the list to be fur-nished to the Secret Service. There are 36 defectors that we know of in this country who have been under investi-gation. Some of those men may have changed their views sincerely. Some of them may not have. But as a mat-ter of general precaution, as as result of the Oswald situa-tion, we are seeing that all go to the Secret Service. J. Lee Rankin—I think the commission would desire to have your comments or what-ever you care to tell them, concerning the reasons why you did not furnish the infor-mation you had concerning Lee Harvey Oswald to the Secret Service prior to the time of the President's as-sassination. That was obviously one of time of the sassination.

time of the President's as-sassination. That was obviously one of the questions that I had in my mind when the tragedy occurred in Dallas. In going back over the rec-ord, and I have read each one of the reports dealing with that and the reports of Mr. [James] Hosty [F.B.I. agent in Dallas] who had dealt with the Oswald situation largely in Dallas, we had the matter that I have previously re-ferred to, the report of the State Department that indi-cated this man was a thor-oughly safe risk, he had changed his views, he was a loyal man now and had seen the light of day, so to speak. How intensive or how ex-tensive that interview in Mos-cow was, I don't know. But, nevertheless it was in a State cow was, I don't know. But, nevertheless, it was in a State Department document that was furnished to us. that

Interviewed on Arrival

Now, we interviewed Os-wald a few days after he ar-rived. We did not interview him on arrival at the port of entry because that is always undesirable by reason of the fact it is heavily covered by press, and many relatives generally are there, so we prefer to do it after the man has settled down for two or three days and become all composed. We do it in the privacy of our office or wherever he may be, or in his own home, or apartment. "We interviewed him twice, in regard to that angle that we were looking for. We had no indication at this time anything other than his so-called Marxist leanings, Marxist beliefs.

anything other than his so-called Marxist leanings, Marxist beliefs. We wanted to know wheth-er he had been recruited by the Soviet Government as an intelligence agent, which is a frequent and constant prac-tice. There is not a year goes by but that individuals and groups of individuals some by but that individuals and groups of individuals, some-times on those cultural ex-changes, go through Russia and recruits are enlisted by the Russian intelligence, usu-ally through blackmail. The individual is threatened that if he doesn't come back to this country and work for them they will expose the fact that he is a homosexual or degenerate or has been indiscreet. or degene indiscreet.

Went Voluntarily

In Oswald's case, we had no suspicion that any pres-sure like that had been brought to bear on him because he had gone voluntarily and had obviously wanted to live in Russia and had mar-ried a Russian woman.

ried a Russian woman. After those interviews had been completed the next in-cident was the difficulty he had at New Orleans. We were concerned there as to whether he was func-tioning officially for the Fair Play for Cuba Committee, which was financed and sup-ported by Castro and Castro's government, and, if he was, where he obtained money and with whom he had dealt. He apparently had the leaf-lets printed himself. There lets printed himself. There was no reason for us, then, to have any suspicion that he had any element of danger in him.

him. However, we did not ignore or forget the fact that he was still in the country. We kept track of him. When he went from New Orleans to Dallas, and that was one of the rea-sons why Hosty went to the home of Mrs. [Ruth] Paine [with whom Mrs. Oswald was staying]. She told us where Oswald was working, at the Texas Book house. Hosty gave her his telephone num-ber and his name so that if there was any information or any contact she wanted to make she could phone him at make she could phone him at the Dallas office.

the Dallas office. Up to that time, there had been no information that would have warranted our re-porting him as a potential danger or hazard to the secu-rity or the safety of the Pres-ident or the Vice President, so his name was not furnished at the time to Secret Service. Under the new criteria which we have now put into force and effect, it would have been furnished because we now include all defectors.

we now include all defectors.

Mr. Dulles—How many names could the Secret Serv-ice process? Aren't their fa-cilities limited as to dealing with vast number of names because of their limited per-sonnel?

Small Organization

Mr. Hoover - I think they Mr. Hoover — I think they are extremely limited. The Secret Service is a very small organization and that is why we are fortifying them, so to speak, or supple-menting them by assigning agents of our bureau, which is, of course, quite a burden on us. 115 on is, of course, quite a burden on us. Many local police depart-ments are capable and effi-cient, some are not. Many have good judgment and some have not. Wherever you have a police department of ten, fifteen, twenty thousand men you are bound to find a few who will just barge in and do something which bet-ter judgment would dictate should not be done as in the incident which occurred out in the Midwest, where they placed these people practic-ally under house arrest. I think it was very bad judgment and should not have been done. But the Se-cret Service, of course, turned the names over to the local authorities do what they think is right. Now L guess their attitude is right.

is right. Now, I guess their attitude with all justice to them is "Well, we will resolve the risk in our favor. If we keep these people under surveillance and keep them in the house until the President gets out of town nothing can happen from them." That is what you would call totalitarian secur-ity. ity.