

Notes on People James F. Clarity

●
Joseph J. Casper became the third top-ranking official of the Federal Bureau of Investigation to request retirement since the death of J. Edgar Hoover May 2. Mr. Casper, who joined the bureau in 1941, has been in charge of its training division. His retirement on June 30, for reasons of health and personal matters, was announced in Washington by L. Patrick Gray 3d, the acting director of the bureau.
