Senator Humphrey left his campaign late today for the hospital where Governor Wallace was taken after being shot.

Senator McGovern said, "All of us must count this vicious assault on Governor Wallace as an assault on everything dear and valued on our national life. "So let us say a prayer for the Governor's recovery and the healing of our nation," Mr. McGovern said in a statement from campaign headquarters in New York.

"Violence is no answer to the problems of this troubled country," he said. "Hatred and the bullet have no place in a society of free men and women.

"No one likes these things to happen."

Senator Edward M. Kennedy, Senators Aksociation for the Advancement of Colored People, said: "We have no use for Governor Wallace and to the members of his grief-stricken family. Once more, democracy in America has been scarred by senseless and unforgivable violence. I am saddened beyond measure that tragedy has again stained and darkened the process we use to select our political leaders."
