

Notes on People

●

According to officials at Maryland State Penitentiary, Arthur H. Bremer greeted with a chuckle the news that a state court had rejected an appeal from his conviction for the attempted assassination last year of Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama. McLindsey Hawkins, an assistant warden, says Bremer is employed in the prison print shop and "does what everybody else does—works, goes to eat." While Bremer's lawyer ponders a further appeal, Federal attorneys are considering further action against the 22-year-old convict.

●

byline,
Lawrence van Gelder