Wallace Reported Seeking Re-election

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 8 (AP)—Gov. George C. Wallace has made up his mind to run for an unprecedented third term as governor. He has told friends he plans an active campaign next year despite the paralysis caused by a 1972 assassination attempt.

The 54-year-old governor, who is confined to a wheelchair most of the time, has steadfastly declined to confirm or deny the speculation that he will seek re-election next year. But the Associated Press learned that he will be a candidate.

Wallace's formal announcement probably will be withheld until mid-January.

Wallace plans an active campaign, making at least one appearance a day and sometimes more.
