

Wallace Is Said to Plan 3d-Term Race

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 8 (A.P.)—Gov. C. Wallace has decided to run for an unprecedented third term as Governor. He has told friends he plans an active campaign next year despite the paralysis caused by a 1972 assassination attempt.

The 54-year-old Governor, who is confined to a wheelchair most of the time, has steadfastly declined to confirm or deny the speculation that he will seek re-election next year. But The Associated Press International learned that he will be a candidate. After the gubernatorial election and Mr. Wallace is a heavy favorite at the moment—the Governor will turn his thoughts to the 1976 presidential election. Both Mr. Wallace and his most trusted friends say no decision has been made yet about a possible bid for the Democratic nomination.

Wallace's formal announcement probably will be withheld until mid-January.

Despite the paralysis in his legs from the assassination attempt during the 1972 presidential race. He plans an active campaign, making at least one appearance a day and sometimes more. But he had told friends: "I'm not going to try to make five or six speeches a day like I once did."

Heavy Schedule

The Governor already has undertaken a busy schedule of public appearances. Behind a specially designed lectern, he speaks standing upright, braced from behind by leather straps.

He attended four football games during the recent season. At one, he crowned a black coed as homecoming queen 10 years ago in an unsuccessful attempt to block the admission of two black students. On another occasion Mr. Wallace made a surprise appearance at a recent southwide conference of black mayors at Tuskegee, and there has been speculation that he may seek the support of black voters in his third-term bid.

He will have opposition. State Senator Eugene McLain of Huntsville, a frequent critic of the present administration, has announced that he will run. And there is talk that former Gov. Albert Brewer, who lost the Democratic nomination to Mr. Wallace in 1970, may try again.

Mr. Wallace was prohibited by the state constitution from succeeding himself and seeking re-election in 1966 at the end of his first term and the legislature refused to submit to the voters a succession amendment to make him eligible to run again.

His first wife, Lurleen, ran instead and became the first woman Governor in Alabama and the third in the nation. She died of cancer in May, 1968. Mr. Brewer, who was lieutenant governor, succeeded her. Meanwhile, the legislature agreed to the succession amendment, the voters ratified it and in 1970 Mr. Wallace was elected for a second time.

He and his present wife, the former Cornelia Ellis Snively, were married shortly before he began his second term in January, 1971.

Working Wives Said to Earn Extra Say on Use of Money

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The working wife has added a second check to family income but disagreement on how it is to be spent can lead to dissension.

So observes W. Scane Bowler, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Pioneer Western Corporation, who said the second income "can actually determine how well a husband and wife get along, matrimonially speaking."

With 46 per cent of the adult female population now contributing to family income, Mr. Bowler says "the husband and wife who both bring home the bacon both should have a say about how it is cooked."

Price of Parking Rises

DOUGLAS, Ariz. (AP)—The penny slots allowing 12 minutes of parking have been removed from the parking meters at this town on the Mexican border. A Mexican five-centavo piece, worth only a third as much, fitted nicely. Only nickels and dimes are now accepted.
