Washington, May 14 (AP)- FBI director J. Edgar Hoover said today he believes the Warren commission's part in the investigation into the assassination of President John F. Kennedy is "obviously nearing its end."

Hoover and John A. McCone, head of the Central Intelligence Agency, testified at a closed commission hearing today. Hoover told newsmen later the investigators wanted to find out if they had anything to add to testimony given earlier by agents from the two offices. He said this should not be taken to indicate the file is finally closed.

The FBI's investigation still is open, and the FBI has supplied "many thousands" of individual investigation reports to the Warren group since its bulky initial report was filed, Hoover said.

"I anticipate that the investigation may be open for many years to come, after the Warren commission issues its report," Hoover said. The thousands of additional reports resulted from tips and leads still coming to the FBI and from leads provided by the Warren commission itself, the FBI chief said, but he added:

"They have provided nothing new of substantial value in the investigation.

This amounts to affirmation that the FBI still considers Lee Harvey Oswald, the Marxist ex-Marine, to have been the lone and unassisted slayer of Kennedy in Dallas last Nov. 22. But Hoover refused to make such a specific statement, and declined to tell reporters even whether he had been asked for his opinion by chief Justice Earl Warren or other members of the commission.

"Obviously I have a definite opinion, but I won't tell you what it is," he said.

It was learned, however, that the FBI has established to its satisfaction that there was no other person than Oswald in the window of the Texas School Depository from which the fatal shots were fired and where police found the mail-order rifle purchased earlier last year by Oswald.

There had been a flurry of reports, never substantiated, that a second figure had been seen at the window. Informed officials ~~XXXXXX~~ said this definitely had been ruled out.

While refusing comment on that specific report, Hoover did take the opportunity to criticize much of the outpouring of rumors and hearsay, in newspapers and even in books, as "absurd" and "journalistic garbage, without a scintilla of fact." The FBI director said he believes the Warren commission has done "a very ~~thorough~~ thorough job--has even gone beyond what a reasonable man would have expected" -- in accumulating evidence on the assassination. m

McCone did not discuss his testimony with reporters, but a commission source said both Hoover and McCone "contributed importantly" to the investigation in the presentation of their "thoughts and observations". Neither said anything that would alter the course of the inquiry, it was stated.

The commission source said that other important witnesses still remain to be called. It is known that they include Mrs. John F. Kennedy, riding with her husband when he was shot.

Mrs. Kennedy may be questioned elsewhere than in the commission's headquarters, where all other witnesses so far have testified.

McCone's testimony, it was indicated, dealt with overseas aspects of the investigation. The commission has attempted to trace closely Oswald's movement and activities in Russia, Cuba and Mexico.
