The Agency

Mr. Carl said that he had read the article in the Chronicle and thought the suggestions were basic, very elementary. There were no doubts in his mind that they were the Warren Commission would do these things. All along, he thought assuming they were interviewing all sorts of FBI and CIA people, from top to bottom. There was no way to double check, though to see if they were.

Mr. Carl, according to The Chronicle's article, said that to this day he was frustrated by the Warren Commission's total reliance on the integrity of the agency at the time.
