Sentence in Report Is Phrased Wrongly

Several members of the Warren Commission acknowledged today that a key sentence of the mammoth report—one over which they labored long—didn't say what they intended to say.	come to the attention of this commission."
The sentence followed a series of statements that the commission had found no evidence of a conspiracy. Here's how the sentence was phrased in the report:	Members of the commission, asked about the sentence, agreed that it should have read either that the possibility of others being involved cannot be disproved categorically—or that the impossibility of others being involved cannot be established categorically.

"Because of the difficulty of proving negatives to a certainty the possibility of others being involved with either Oswald or Ruby cannot be established categorically, but if there is any such evidence it has been beyond the reach of all the investigative agencies and resources of the United States and has not
