E. E. Bradley, above, was charged by Jim Garrison with conspiracy to kill the President. Governor Ronald Reagan, however, refused to extradite the Reverend Bradley.

PICTURES OF SOME OF THOSE ARRESTED AND ONE ACCUSED AFTER THE ASSASSINATION OF PRESIDENT JOHN F. KENNEDY IN DALLAS

AP/WIDE WORLD PHOTOS

Pictured above are three of the ten men who were arrested in Dealey Plaza minutes after President Kennedy was assassinated. No record of the arrests were made by the police, and the names of the men are not known.

Of particular interest at this time is the man second from right with open collar and no hat. He is generally referred to as the "walking man."

Roger Craig, a deputy sheriff at the time, later identified E. E. Bradley as being present at the time of the assassination. Craig says he saw Bradley on the steps of the School Book Depository Building and heard him tell persons present that he was a Secret Service man. Bradley is pictured at the left on this page.

Craig named E. E. Bradley during several TV and radio appearances while in California during March of 1968. After an appearance on the Joe Pyne show, Craig was approached by a man who was quite persistent as to why Craig would say such bad things about a good man like Mr. Bradley. Bradley is supposed to be an assistant for Minister Carl McIntire in California.

Craig has been certain since that night that the persistent questioner was the "walking man" pictured here.

Also significant is the claim by some critics that the walking man is a brother of E. E. Bradley.

Four men were arrested in a box car behind the post office annex which is across Commerce south of the assassination site. The men were taken to Sheriff Bill Decker's office, but no mention has ever been made of the men again.

Walking man on left. Man in front has not been identified, but is generally referred to as Frenchy because of his clothing which seems to be continental in nature.

Another view of the two with head of a third man also under arrest.
