

Reaction to JFK shirt collar.

I have a problem understanding some parts of the Warren Commission findings. First of all I don't really understand how a bullet could come through the President's neck and only leave a relatively small ~~drop~~ ^{area} of blood on either side of the shirt. It seems to me the entire top of the shirt should be ~~soiled~~ ^{soiled}.

I also have a problem understanding how a bullet could pass through a knotted tie, damaging the outside material without damaging the lining. I would think if a bullet passed through a knot of a tie it would pass through both layers of materials.
