

New President Poses for First Pictures

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson posed with Secretary of State Dean Rusk Saturday for the first photographs to be taken of him at a business conference since he succeeded to the presidency.

The new Chief Executive dangled a pair of plastic-framed eyeglasses in one hand, and held a typewritten document in the other as he and Rusk sat soberfaced at a long rectangular, mahogany table in Mr. Johnson's office in the executive office building.

Photographers jammed into the doorway of the room — cramped in comparison to the spacious, oval office Mr. Johnson will occupy at the White House. As cameramen vied for positions, a small plant was knocked from a table near Mr. Johnson's desk.
