Pope Says Murder Shows How Evil Threatens Peace

VATICAN CITY (UPI) — Pope Paul VI told 30,000 persons in St. Peters Square Sunday that the assassination of President Kennedy reveals "how great a capacity for hate and evil there is still in the world and how great a threat to civil order and peace."

The Pope, appearing at the window of his study to give his blessing to the unusually large crowd assembled below said:

"Very dear children, we cannot in this moment of common prayer take our thought, a sad thought, a way from the crime that in these days has aroused the deploration of the entire world.

"Our thought, POPE PAUL after that of suffering for he who is missing from this life, is of comfort to those who remain in sorrow and regret.

It detects how great a capacity for hate and evil there is still in the world and how great a threat to civil order and peace, and also how much need there is of the grace of God, His mercy, and His Pardon.

"Thus we pray as Jesus taught us: lead us not into temptation, and free us from evil," the pontiff said.

The Pope then invoked "The very human and maternal intercession" of the Virgin Mary, and recited the "Angelus Domini" prayer.
