

Do you want this sort of thing on foundations? (Note to myself, in case you answer on this scrap - and because I'll have forgotten what this is about: the clipping is "Wealthiest Foundations in U.S. Reported to Be 'Malfunctioning.'")

This was attached to a NYT story on Wlademar Nielson's book. Specifically, the answer is "yes" but I limit it to foundations connected with the CIA. I think I have interested HR in a book on them appropriate to his major and worthy of a thesis. We may collaborate if he does not do a thesis. Not on foundations but those serving intelligence, perhaps federal, interests. Nielson happens to have been the head of Ned Crosby's foundation, African-American, with Katzenbach later on it. I think I've referred you to the index to The Invisible Government on both. So, I have this added interest. Especially if I can ever get to take the CIA to court and sue for damages, from espionage, which I have proven, including the fronts they used, and on the probability of Hunt's intrusions at Littauer & Wilkinson. I hope Volz gets interested in L & W and domestic intelligence. He may come next week over
