2／9－last night was like you guys are when you come back from the long trip to the other side of the moon．I started ketting real sleepy $\because$ after a late，light supper of a IT salad only，was dozing in the chair os at 9，when I eot into bed and fell asleep immediately。Unlike other amights，when I awaken between 3－4 U And now usually go back to sleep for an hour or sao．I was dead until 6：45 aom．This kind of thing，rare as it is，leaves me groggy and weak． And with unclear recollection．So， if I didn＇t tell you in a note，a few of which I recall writing to you and others last night，bil was pleased with the pictures of the kids with the blanket because， despite the unclarity making prints from slides（and many thanks for the thought and the trouble），they make clear that two cute kids were enjoying it，and what is more important in life than that kids be happy and enjoy？The immediate reason for the fatigue and I supposi the emptional collapse was my success as my own lawyer in the suit for the smallest of the many debts owed me bywholesalers of my printings．In this case，by the time the case was called，I think I had the lawyer I had been fight－ ing on my side，in part from fear of what would happen to his rep if a layman beat him in open court， as I had a fine chance of doing． On my side，my fear was that first by being my own lawyer I＇d have the judge，who was and will again be a law女er，sticking up for the claosed corporation of the Est．， and that in my ignorance I＇d make some blunder and be unable to refute a crooked citation。 I calles the lawyer on the way up in the guise of asking him for when the case was set．Obviously，though he seems not to have realized it，the slerk of the court was the best source．He was friendly and we chatted，and I told him the truth， that I had found in my files new proof，and that I had what seemed to me to be the definitive answer to the claim of the running of the statute，an open admission of the debt within the statutory limit， also true．So，he started to be fatherly with me（though I am the age of his older brother, who was my high-school and college classmate), and counselled me to accept a settlement. I maid Kake, what is your honest appraisal of my chances? These guys all seem to be unable to cope with openness. He said good-50-50. I said only good? He said at least good, but you can blow it. Right, I said, So wjy don't you settle, he asked. I said because every time you personally talk of settlement you offer me a lower figure than the last I've rejected. If you don't want me to beat you in court, where I know I run the risk of blowing itt, come up with somethin real, not the silly stuff you have been talking about. And if $a$ layman and a former report for the p paper that will be covering beats you in court and proves your client is a crook, what will it fo to them and you personally and their business relationships, and their social lives? He gave mne a figgure I rejected. He finally got to one I would accept if Lil would, and 'I said add to"that my actual court costs and if my wife agrees, maybe I wiml. But at this point I make no promises because of all the work and aggravation you have caused us and because I think I have a better than 50-50 chance in courto You get your client to ggree to a decent " settlement consistent with my chance in court and if my wife says set-tIe, I'II set.tle. I'll get there early so we can talk. So, I got back in the car, we drove the rest of the djstamee and Lil laughed when I said it is up to her, saying she knew I wanted the blood and the flesh of the courtroom victory, so gofor it. I surprised her, for she was right, I did want it, by saying that in our shape this should not control. She never did give me a direct answer, and the next morning, in court but before the hearing, they did show up, Jake asked me about settling, I said let me mexe hear numbers, he came up with about 2/3 of what I could prove withput questions, alvout half of what I was suing for, agreed, with his client present to pick up the court tab, ar and I asked 语l, who was sitting down Madam La arging elsewhere, and We never got Into the courtroom itseli.1.We came home with a check that this a.mo wily go foward the payment of that part of our annual instalment on the principal I could not give the bank last year. It is a hell of a way to spend time, but it is a gratification, abd much as Ild have enjoyed the challenge in court, I am content to make the payment to, the bank because of one other thing I had estimated to be the case, that. I didn't leam until afterward, from Jake, that if he lost his client had told him to apps anoeal to the higher court to.bleed

```
```

me. And then a victory would have been a net loss to me. As it tuirns out, in my dealings with this lawyer I have radicalized him a bit, after a stern lecture about what has alientated kids, like his mephew. He has taken the case of blacks about to be put out of their homes for a spur of an expressway and likes the suggested the Black Man's Home and in my presence wrote. a friend of mine who has done much work in this field fpr help. Maybe I told you, but while Iil is making breakfast, I thought you'd enjoy the story if I hadn't. I haven't yet read the Ietters, but I'I1 spend the flay catching up. Enjoy the other side for the coming stint. Best, HW

