

HW:

Don't know how you feel about it -- you must have considered it, -- but the feeling grows on me that Hunt is a prime candidate as the author of the "Can Mr. Weisberg Translate?" note.

Especially if, as you think, he loused up a deal on one of your books. This means he knows quite a lot about you.

As a writer of novels, now matter how bad they may be, he should be perfectly capable of concocting such a note, and he comes nearer to meeting the requirements of motivation on several scores than anyone I've yet considered.
