Demo bugging sit changed. Two papers, Post, CDN, seeking backgrounding. A NY friend is to send Times coverage but hasn't yet. Anything you see not attributed to Post (as in LATimes) or not seen in NYT, I'd appreciate. To date I disagree with O'Brien; who need not believe what he says anyway, still think Cubans, probably Rebozo-connected, will surface more than they have. And to date every name I've seen has Cuban, CIA connections or both. The identification of Barker as the "Bernie" in Haynes Johnson's book, not handled that way by Post, is mine. Too bad they didn't take my Sunday suggestion and check hotel charges. Only word last night unidentified "E. Warren", which sound like extreme-right joke. No address yet given. Post reporter going to work two hours early this a.m. so we can get together before my 11 a.m. ortho. apt, I presume last, on thumb.

6/19-While listening to the 5 p.m. CBS net news to see if there is anything new on the bugging case (nix so far except Ziegler's holiness and IIII's indignation), let me note in case you missed it that with all that cash on hand and captured and the successful business and $45,000 home McCord had, the only reason the five cats are in jail is because they elect it. Most probable reason: the only way to avoid the press. Makes me wonder what the one lawyer named to this moment, Caddy, told his client...CDN DC friend Bob had notes of long-ago conversations with some of principles. I jogged his memory and he will check and will work independently on story if Lisagor oks. Another already assigned to straight stuff as it evolves and emerges and appears elsewhere.
