Do you know a good Houston reporter not dedicated to Foreman? There are two things I'd like to get checked out, one F's appearances, esp. one on TV but possibly others, right after the minitrial, in which, among other things, he called Ray crazy; the other whether during a period in early 1969 he made any court appearances, because he was then assuring the Memphis court he was too ill from pneumonia. Prisoner stories indicate feigning illness is one of his more regular fakes. On the other side, there is a different, also prisoner, story, that for dramatic effect he appeared in court on a stretcher. His absence from Memphis, to his certain knowledge, meant that Ray would see no lawyer, for he knew Ray would have nothing to do with the assigned public defender (ugh!) and, in fact, when said p.d., Stanton, appeared, Ray did, absolutely, refuse to see or talk to him. Foreman shares Ray's low opinion of Stanton, and has held forth on it at some length. H
