

HW

The attached all are returned at your request, and in spite of your twin habits of folding clippings in upon themselves (so they cannot be identified without unfolding) and at times noting your request for return well down toward the bottom rather than at the top.

If you really want to make sure something is returned, better fold the clip so that the top is instantly recognizable and identifiable without unfolding, with the request for return equally conspicuous.

I'm sorry there's no more tactful way to bring this up, but we want to be sure we don't mistakenly discard or file something which should be returned.
