

HW:

Herewith what we can find that seems relevant to your Freidheim book project. Most of it is about the bombing of the French ~~missi~~ mission, at which time Laird also distinguished himself.

Among the clippings about the Bach Mai hospital bombing, you'll find one from the Washington Post and another from the Star. You supplied both, but they contain material which you should have and we send them along in case you've lost your own copies. The Star clip establishes that Bach Mai had been bombed earlier and that the Americans knew perfectly well where and what it was.

Suppose you know there already are two books out along the same line, although neither should interfere with the Freidheim project.

The first is "The Unholy Hymnal, Falsities and Delusions Rendered by [names Nixon and other hawks and winds up with J. Edgar Hoover] & other Choirboys of the Credibility Gap." ~~Simon~~ By Albert E. Kahn. Simon & Schuster, 1971. $2.95 paperback.

The other is "I Want To Make One Thing Perfectly Clear," by Amram M. Ducovny, Ballantine, $1.00, 1971.
