

If your radio and TV are as full or the ~~sirens~~ news about floods and warnings of them for this area as ours, don't worry about us. We are on higher land and in this immediate area only valley streams <sup>are up</sup> and meadows are under water. We had a heavy rains and then the remnant of the hurricane, much water, but no problems. Four inches yesterday alone. Fortunately there was no real wind. While I've been housebound, the obly visible damage is the washing of stones on the lane, no big deal. Odd business, the excessive warnings that may get extensive attentin. I think it goes back to warning not given and others bot heeded and the shift in path of this storm that took it to unprepared Panama City, Fla. Maybe it scared the forecasters. Butwe are okay.
